

How can I switch between printing techniques?

Printrove currently offers 2 printing techniques; Direct To Garment and Direct To Film. According to your preference, you can switch between the printing techniques for an order by following the steps below.

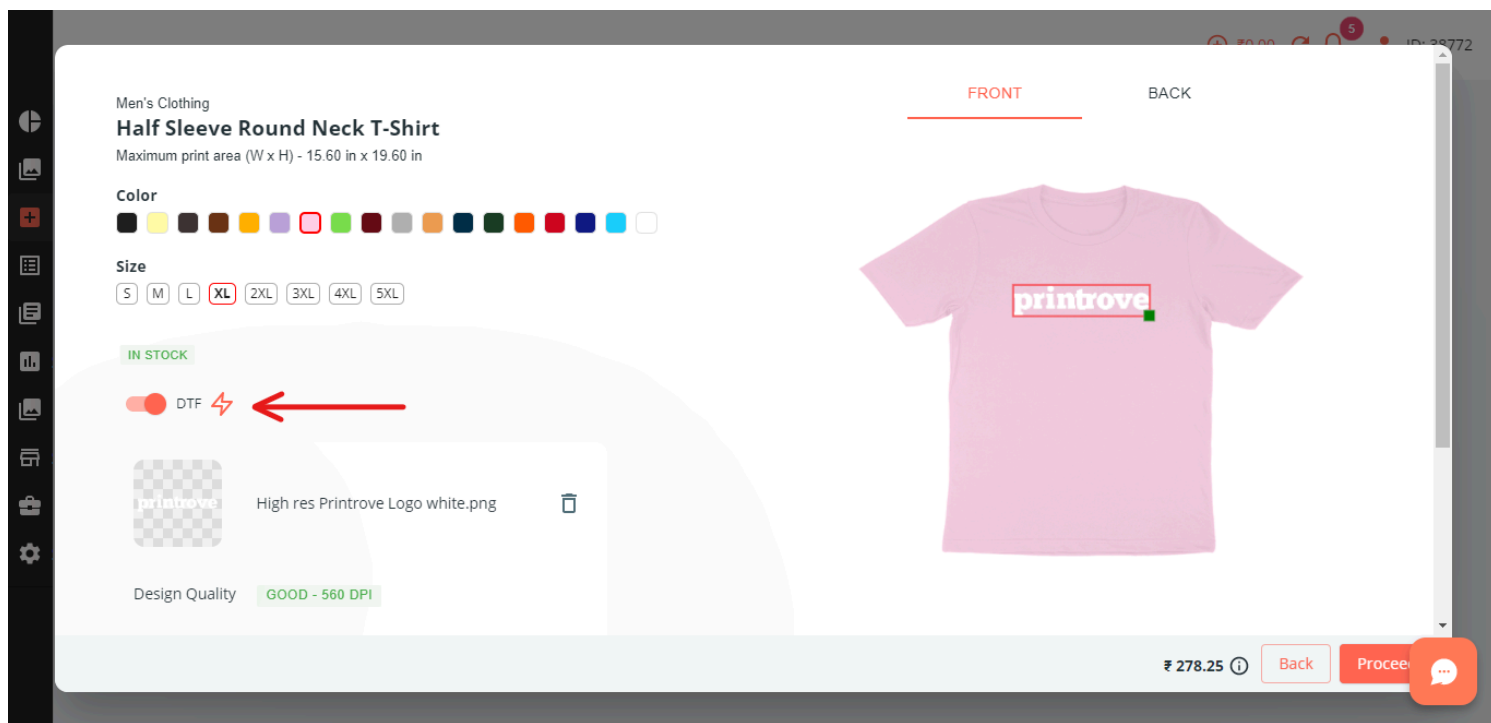

- ① To understand how you can mark a printing technique as default for your Printrove Account, we suggest referring to the following article. How to make your preferred printing technique a default for your Printrove Merchant Account?

What are the reasons for switching?

- Better Print Output
- Customer's Preference
- Quality Concerns
- Cost Effective

How to switch between printing techniques?

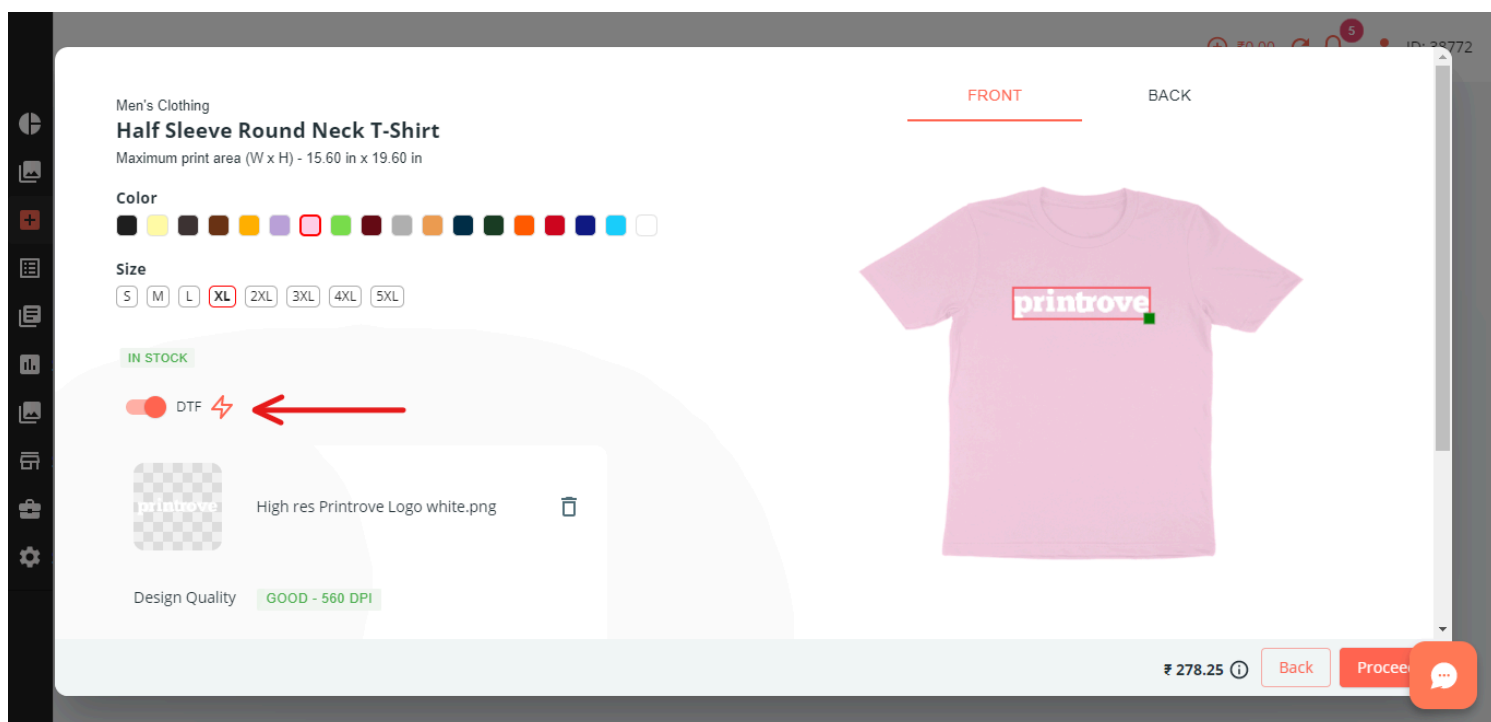

To switch between printing techniques, all you will be required to do is enable or disable the DTF toggle as shown in the image below.

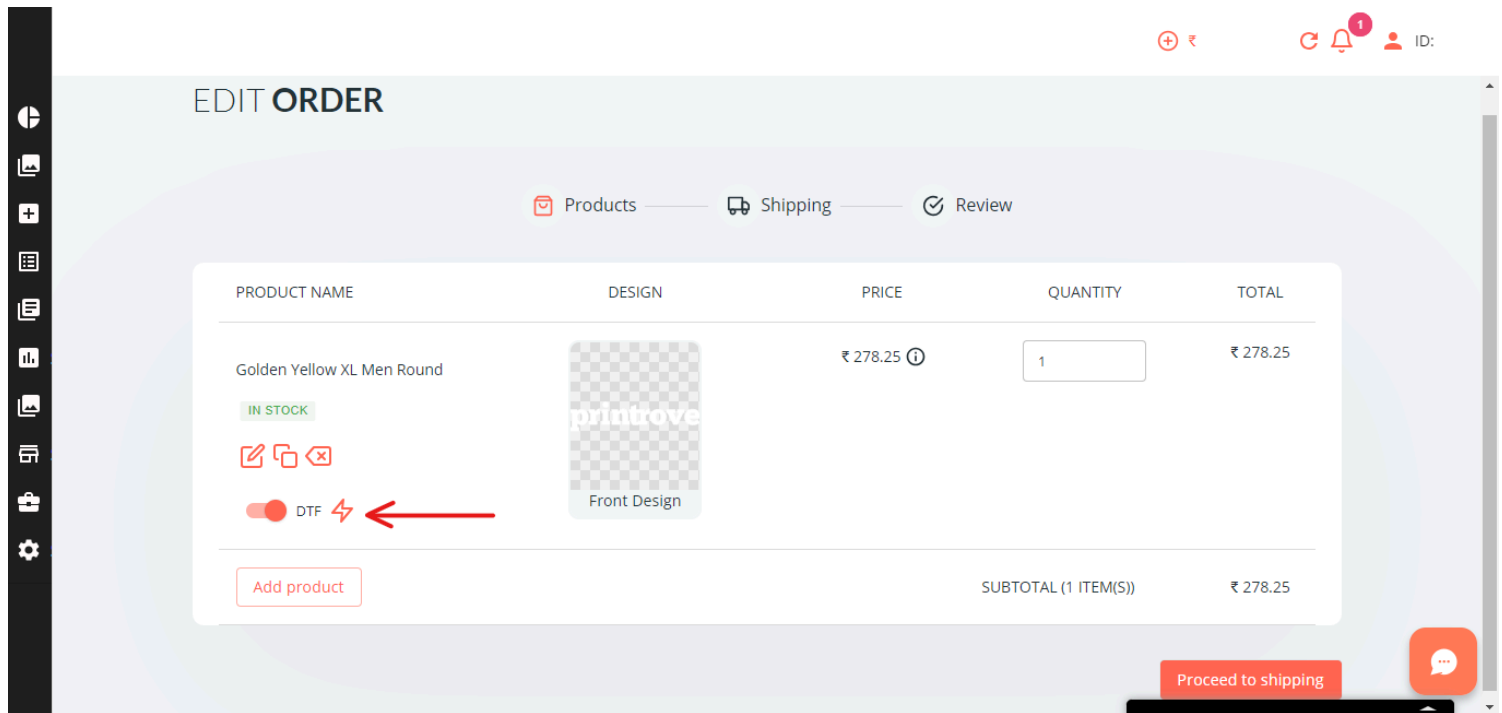

Disabling the DTF toggle indicates that the order needs to be printed with the DTG printing technique.

You can take the above action on the following occasions.

- While manually placing a new order

- While editing an order after it has been placed or is in the unconfirmed stage.

❗ Please note that the printing charges for the product will be calculated according to the printing technique opted. To understand the printing charges based on the printing technique, please refer to the following article. What is the difference between DTG and DTF printing technique?

Suggested Article: How to edit an order on Printrove?