❗ Disabling the check box will make DTG or Direct To Garment your default printing technique.

It's important to note that you can change your default printing mode at any time by following these steps. However, please keep in mind that some products may require specific printing techniques based on the material, size, and design, and the default printing mode may not always be suitable. If you have any doubts or concerns about the printing mode to be used for your products, you can always reach out to our customer support team for assistance at support@printrove.com.

📄 Please note that to place an order with the printing technique other than the default, you can enable or disable the DTF toggle while placing the order.
